Introduction

The American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) of 2021 was signed into law by President Biden on March 11, 2021. The legislation established the Coronavirus State and Local Fiscal Recovery Fund (SLFRF), which is intended to support state and local governments as they address the health and economic impacts of COVID-19 on their communities, residents, and businesses.

The City of Oklahoma City has been allocated $122,507,590 from the SLFRF to respond to the public health emergency and its negative economic impacts by providing assistance to households, small businesses, nonprofits and severely impacted industries, such as tourism, travel, and hospitality.

On September 14, 2021, City of Oklahoma City Council (the City) allocated $37,000,000 from its SLFRF apportionment towards addressing the negative economic impacts of COVID-19; and on February 14, 2022, the City entered into an Operation Agreement with the Alliance for Economic Development of Oklahoma City (the Alliance) to administer $20,250,000 from the SLFRF to aid small businesses and nonprofits, assist minority and disadvantaged businesses, and provide workforce development and job training/upskilling programs.

The City agreement for administering ARPA funds directed the Alliance to allocate funding for small business/nonprofit support programs like technical assistance. The scope of small business/nonprofit technical assistance support includes business pre-accelerator and accelerator programs designed to assist early- and mid-stage firms by bolstering access to professional mentoring and training, networking, and capital resources.

Project Overview

In a study conducted by Ernst & Young for The Alliance, titled “Oklahoma City Community Economic Recovery & Resiliency Study” (the Study), the need for Oklahoma City to make an effort to provide small businesses access to mentorship, pre-accelerator and accelerator programs was identified.

The study “found there to be some significant challenges that appear to be inhibiting the potential of entrepreneurs of color to move to the next level. These obstacles include—but are not limited to—the absence of a platform for minority founders to connect with investors; and a distinct absence of technical assistance resources and programs that are marketed to underrepresented founders. Also noteworthy is the apparent cultural and communication divide between black founders and the angel investment community, which is predominately white. Oklahoma City has an opportunity to become a global leader in entrepreneurship, but must assume a thoughtful and systematic approach to building an ecosystem that is markedly more supportive of entrepreneurs of color, and also provides education and guidance for angel investors to help them overcome unconscious bias.”

The study recommended partnership with existing programs and other entities as a means to improve access to funding, technical assistance, and professional networks for underrepresented entrepreneurs and founders.

To fulfill this direction from the City and recommendation from the study, we are seeking qualified consultants to provide small business owners access to a slate of programs specifically designed to meet these gaps and support founders/entrepreneurs of diverse backgrounds.
